In: Comments Share there are many species of dragons known in how to accustom the dragon franchise. Of the dozens of famous dragons, Vikings from a hairy hooligan tribe prefer to classify them into seven different classes. The first Viking to classify dragons was Bork the Bold, the ancestor of Gobber Belch and the creator of the Book of Dragons. Stoker class Dragons Stoker class dragons hot-headed fire-eaters. This class includes dragons that can set themselves on fire as well as most small species of dragons. The dragon class of Stocker loses his fire is a sign that he will die, although his flame may be re-poisoned by the fireworm queen or there is their flame gel combs. Dragon species included in the stocker class: Boulder class Boulder class dragons are tough dragons and connected to the ground. They can eat rocks, and although they have small wings relative to their body size, they can fly as fast and as high as most other dragons can. The types of dragons included in the Boulder class are: Tracker Class Tracker Class is a new class discovered in the race to the edge. The symbol of this class re-use the symbol of the class of fear, despite the Hidden Cipbeek not belonging to this class. Natural horn hunters, Tracker class dragons have a very keen sense of smell or taste that allows them to track and find things. Dragon species included in this class are: Rumblehorn Thunderclaw Mudraker Sharp Class Sharp Class Dragons vain and proud species, and they all possess sharp parts of the body. Dragons included in this class: Tidal class tidal class class live in or near the ocean, and unlike most dragons, they don't breathe fire as their range attacks, and while very few can, they rarely use them. The dragons in this class tend to be larger in size than most other classes. Hiccup also stated that tidal-class dragons react poorly to signs of aggression. Dragons included are: Mystery class Little known about the mystery class of dragons because of how hidden and vile they are. Dragons in this class are usually more afraid than in other dragon classes. The dragon species included are: Strike class strike class dragons characterized by their blazing speed, vice-like jaw strength, and extreme intelligence, as well as precise accuracy, powerful attacks, explosive firepower and unique ability to allow them to navigate in appropriate environments/atmosphere. Dragons in this class are among the rarest of all dragons, and some of them are close to extinction. They are also the most difficult to learn, but the most faithful, once they have been trained, they are also usually among the most powerful dragons. The Dragons included are: - Unclassified Dragons (Media:Example.ogg Some Dragons in the franchise) have not yet been officially classified in any class and can be sorted in the future. The reasons for this lack of information vary. First, it's just because the dragon is too new or has only made very few media appearances. This usually happens when the dragon was created by a company other than DreamWorks. Currently unclassified dragons are the original dragon of Arena Spectacular, the four remaining unknown dragons in How to Accede Dragon 2, unknown dragons on the hiccup's map in How to Accustom Dragon 2, three unidentified dragons that appear in the Book of Dragons, the Flightless Dragon that appears at the end of Burning Midnight, two kinds of dragon from race to edge, and one that is considered mythical. This guide is a must for fans of the New York Times Bestseller How to Accustom The Dragon series that inspired the hit movie and TV show. This gift book shows all kinds of dragons from the series plus brand new ones created just for this book, with color illustrations of everyone! Honestly, this book was kinda boring. It doesn't contain much information that we didn't know yet from reading the actual series. There were some new dragons, but the information was kinda dry. It's basically a book with a list of dragons and their stats according to Hiccup. The map in the back was awesome though. And the last thoughts of Ikota were: I've done everything I've done, what? What's going to happen? Made me thirsty to learn, and at the same time scary haha! Just for this piece I would still Mr. Honestly, this book was kinda boring.
